When you write them make it clear you want a Patient Bill of Rights like the one proposed in my book "A Sea of Broken Hearts." Tell them you are fed up with a super-expensive healthcare non-system that delivers third-rate care. Make it clear that unless they act, they will not receive your vote in the next election.

A sea of broken hearts | HuffPost

I wrote A Sea of Broken Hearts (2007), a book that describes the poor quality of care my son received, the lack of accountability for the system's failings, and the solution I propose: a genuine, national patient bill of rights. The goal would be to protect patients like the laws that protect workers subject to exploitation by powerful employers.
