Protestant group to settle in Brazil. The American immigration to Brazil was started within that year of 1865, in small ships and sailboats hurriedly reshaped, "motivated more by the pain and feelings of despair than by the vessels themselves." They were exhausted men, women and children, many were very injured, others were sick and depressed,

Immigration To Brazil

According to Berry, it is better to maintain links to one's ethnic culture after immigration.

However, societies need to accept and encourage different cultures. Berry
