Lent by Phyllis Zagano. This is a neat little book of reflections for each day of Lent. I began reading this book on Ash Wednesday. The first reflection describes the need for silence in prayer, because how else will we be questioned with questions we may not be able to answer, if we never stop talking!?

Lent — Franciscan Media

Sacred Silence is the Native American term for the place of inner peace or meditation, and our farm is nestled in a hammock of ancient Live Oak trees that we are sure was a place of reflection for our ancestors. In a more modern sense, it is the beautiful quietness that occurs when everyone is fed and happy.
