Authored by Jacob G. Hornberger via The Mises Institute, It is amazing to me that President Trump has pardoned some people who he considered heroic while continuing to leave Julian Assange and Edward Snowden, two genuine heroes, in the lurch. Assange, of course, is getting the worst of it, given the brutal conditions under which...

Robert D. Kaplan - Wikipedia
In my travels around the world to preach the Gospel, I have been surrounded by angry mobs. I have walked down dangerous jungle trails. I have been in storms on the sea. I have walked down streets where every eye was hostile. In the midst of a thousand dangers I have sensed the all-protecting presence of God Himself. Another basic need is affection.

Farming would collapse, and people all over the globe would starve to death. And that's if only half of one percent of all the atomic bombs on earth were used. In the end, this is a difficult story to sum up. The making of the atomic bomb is one of history's most amazing examples of teamwork and genius and poise under pressure.
