History of Dodge

The Dodge was in an even more precarious position, closer to the edge, and Gilleland had to get much closer to it. The anchor points couldn't be moved, because stable ground was hard to come by. Using the Hummer's electric winch and a hand winch called a come-along, Gilleland finally tugged the Dodge near to the Jeep.

Dodge v. Ford Motor Company, 204 Mich. 459, 170 N.W. 668 (Mich. 1919) is a case in which the Michigan Supreme Court held that Henry Ford had to operate the Ford Motor Company in the interests of its shareholders, rather than in a charitable manner for the benefit of his employees or customers. It is often cited as affirming the principle of "shareholder primacy" in corporate America.
