- You want to read about Biblical or Orthodox theology. It has been said that the God of the Bible, with all of his anger, tenderness, vengeance, love, and patience – in a word, with all of his personality – is more like Zeus than “the God of the philosophers.” Hart’s philosophical “God” does nothing to dispel this notion.

The ultimate goal of the Orthodox Christian is to achieve theosis (" deification ") or conformity to and intimate union with God. This is sometimes expressed thus: "God became man so that Man might become god." Some of the greatest saints have achieved, in this life, a measure of this process.
