The Philosophy Of Poverty

The Poverty of Philosophy (French: Misère de la philosophie) is a book by Karl Marx published in Paris and Brussels in 1847, where he lived in exile from 1843 until 1849. It was originally written in French as an answer to the economic and philosophical arguments of French anarchist Pierre-Joseph Proudhon set forth in his 1846 book The System of Economic Contradictions, or The Philosophy of Poverty .

The title's a poke at Proudhon's "The Philosophy of Poverty". Marx uses his retort to Proudhon's analysis of commodity exchange to provide an in-depth, but accessible, understanding of how commodity production works, including demystifying how the market decides what products are more valuable than others, despite their lack of real utility.

The Poverty of Philosophy - Wikipedia

In 'the Philosophy of Misery', Proudhon analyses five evolutionary stages of capitalism, namely: division of labour, machinery, competition, monopoly, and tax/policing. Based on his analyses, he indicts capitalism. Since, according to him, socialism is a replication of certain elements of capitalism, he also indicts socialism.

Answer to the Philosophy of Poverty by M. Proudhon

One reason for this is that much political philosophy concentrates on exploring the conditions of a fully just 'ideal' society, and in such a society there is, of course, no poverty. However, a deeper reason is that poverty is generally defined in terms of not having sufficient resources to meet a particular set of basic needs.
